(Interpreter and Translator)

(L-12)

Decreto Direttoriale 31 luglio 2003

Conferma del riconoscimento della Scuola superiore per mediatori linguistici con sede in Roma, per l'istituzione e l'attivazione di corsi di studi superiori ai sensi del regolamento adottato con decreto 10 gennaio 2002, n. 38.

Ministero dell'Istruzione, dell'Università e della Ricerca

DIPARTIMENTO PER LA PROGRAMMAZIONE ECONOMICA IL COORDINAMENTO E GLI AFFARI ECONOMICI S.A.U.S. – UFFICIO VI IL DIRETTORE GENERALE DEL SERVIZIO PER L'AUTONOMIA E GLI STUDENTI

SYLLABUS: Since 2002, the Higher Schools for Interpreters and Translators have been allowed to reform their structure and programmes according to the Ministerial Decree n° 38/02. The entire process is taking place under the supervision of the Ministry for Education, Universities and Research – MIUR. Once reformed, Higher Schools for Interpreters and Translators have been renamed Higher Schools for Language Mediators (Scuole Superiori per Mediatori Linguistici). The courses provide students with a solid mastery in at least two foreign languages and help develop specific technical language skills both written and oral for professions in language mediation (interpreting and translating) that is to say, translation studies. The new programmes include a three-year-study course and the degrees allow students to earn a second degree, known as an MA, which takes two years to complete. To enroll students are required to have an Italian school leaving qualification or an equivalent foreign qualification. Admission may be subject to an entrance test devised to check that the student has acquired sufficient knowledge in both foreign languages and the mother tongue. The current university legislation for student welfare services is extended to all Higher Schools for Language Mediators.
